ACTIVITY AT THE MINES

Many Men Working at Several of the Mines and Large Shipments of Coal Are Being Made

MINERS BEHAVE SPLENDIDLY

And no Acts of Violence Have Been Resorted to—Eastern Miners Want to Come

After being idle for nearly five months, during the greater part of which time negotiations had been unsuccessfully carried on between the operators and miners, it appears that most, if not all of the coal miners in Alberta and south-eastern British Columbia will resume developments immediately in spite of the stubborn opposition of the Union officials. This procedure was decided on at a meeting of the Western Coal Operators Association held at Macleod last week.

Corbin miners resumed operations over two weeks ago. Upwards of one hundred men are working at the Corbin camp and several hundred tons of coal are being shipped from there each day.

Several of the coal companies in this vicinity are also shipping coal and it is believed that within a few weeks everything in and around the mines will be running full blast.

If the Union officials do not give in and accept Rev. Dr. Gordon's report, (the same as the operators did) hundreds of strike breakers will be brought in from the east and police protection will be given all the mines, so as to make it quite easy for the operators to carry on their work and insure perfect safety to the employees.

So far the miners have conducted themselves in a most peaceable manner, no violence whatever, having been resorted to. It is therefore hoped that a settlement between the miners and the operators will be immediately arrived at whereby the men will return to work saving the operators the unpleasantness and inconvenience of bringing men in from the East, and the miners thereby maintaining their good reputation so far as being peaceable and desirable citizens.

T. Frayer Presents Silver Cup to Gun Club

What Co. Jones is to the Pacific Coast people, Thos. Frayer is to the sport-lovers of The Pass. Mr. Frayer is doing more in the way of introducing good clean sport in The Pass and in maintaining it than any other person here. Last winter Mr. Frayer presented a large, beautiful and expensive silver cup to The Pass Hockey League and besides using that means to encourage sport he has been a great financial help. This summer he has presented to the Blairmore Gun Club a number of silver spoons and medals and last, but not least, has presented the same club with a splendid and valuable silver cup. The cup has just arrived and is on exhibition in J.S. Murray's store window.

Big Sale of Horses at Lundbreck.

On Wednesday of next week J. M. Carter will conduct a big auction sale of horses at Lundbreck. The sale will commence at 1.30 p.m. and Mr. Carter expects to have the sale over long before 6 p.m., so that those from the west who attend the sale may be able to return home on the "local." Some of the finest horses in the district will be offered for sale and a rare opportunity is thereby held out to those who wish to make good purchases.

The Sunny Side of Broadway.

That nifty and amusing song show, "The Sunny Side of Broadway," which appeared at the Blairmore opera house on Wednesday evening of this week came fully up to the expectations of all present, in fact, was a great deal more interesting than many people had even expected it would be, and it kept the large crowd in roars of laughter from the start to the finish. Max Bloom and his able supporters did their parts admirably and were greeted by loud and long applause by the highly pleased audience. Everybody was delighted and many regular theatre goers said it was the best show that they had ever seen.

The same company may give a return performance at Blairmore about the last of September.

Presbyterians Organize a Guild.

After the regular preaching service in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening last, the pastor, Rev. A. S. Tod, invited as many as wished of the young people of the church to remain for the purpose of organizing a young people's society, to which twenty-six responded. After the pastor had announced the object of the meeting, it was decided to have such a society formed and to name it "The Presbyterian Guild." H. G. Bigelow was elected president; Miss E. Davis, Mrs. J. F. Lank, J. De-Voi and J. D. S. Barrett were elected vice-presidents, and Miss M. O'Brien sec-treas. The following committees were appointed: Look-out, Miss Davis, convener; Missionary, Mrs. J. F. Lank, convener; Devotional, J. De-Voi, convener; Literary, J. D. S. Barrett, convener; Social, Mrs. McVicar, convener. It was decided to meet every Monday night in the church. The first meeting will be held on Monday evening next. All the young people are cordially invited to attend. Everybody present was pleased with the action taken by Mr. Tod in organizing what has long been needed in Blairmore.

EXPENSIVE CHICKENS

Two Blairmore Men Violate the Game Law by Shooting Prairie Chickens in Close Season.

SUNDAY OBSERVERS STARTLED

By a Loud Report From Shooting -A Search Is Made but the Sabbath Breaker Escapes

On Sunday evening about 7 o'clock when many of Blairmore's citizens were preparing for church and when their thoughts were centred on "things above and not on things on the earth," a report which sounded like that of a gun was heard in the direction of Victoria Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. The residents in that vicinity became aroused and many had visions of a brutal murder or of a dramatic suicide.

Although the police were soon on the scene, they were unable to find out who caused the disturbance, but on entering the Belgian cobbler's shop, they discovered feathers like those of a prairie chicken. A representative of this paper was also at the scene of the excitement shortly after the noise was heard, but we were told by Stener, the cobbler, through an interpreter, that he did not fire the shot. When questioned, Stener at first said that the feathers came off an ordinary tame fowl which he had purchased from one of the local butchers but when further pressed, the Belgian admitted that he had shot a prairie chicken. He was then invited to accompany the police back to their barracks, which invitation he promptly accepted.

On Monday morning Alphonse Stener appeared before Justice Pinkney, charged with having wilfully shot a prairie chicken out of season. He confessed his guilt and was fined $40 and costs, $47.25 in all.

William Oliver also appeared before Justice Pinkney on Monday and he too was charged with having shot a prairie chicken. He was found guilty and was fined $25 and $4.50 costs.

We hope that the above cases will serve as a lesson to others and that they will be the means of preventing any further infringement of the game laws in this district.

SUZETTE'S
SOLUTIONThe Way She Brought Helena and Robert Together.

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN.

It was only a few minutes until train time, and the woman who all the morning had been wandering restlessly about the house, looking for a moment's companionship to the realization of the fact that soon, very soon, Suzette would be here. Suzette, after her four years at an eastern college, was coming home. And what was she, Helena Crosby, going to say to the girl? It was in answer to Helena's direct appeal that the girl was coming—that and Sanford's letter. Despite the warmth of the sweet June day Helena shivered. What was she to say?

Sanford's letter spoke for itself. In clear, unambiguous terms, it begged Suzette to give up that long dream of year in Europe and come back and marry him. His anxiously awaited promotion had arrived. He was at last in a position to see the fulfilment of their boy and girl pledge. He knew well enough what the letter contained. Had she not practically dictated the substance of it?

And Suzette's only answer had been a noncommittal telegram, "Starting for home today."

Did she mean to marry Robert or did she not? That was the question which over and over again rose fresh to her sister's mind. Since Suzette was sixteen and Robert twenty-two the two had been engaged, or, rather, there had been an understanding between them. Then Suzette had gone to college, and Robert had followed his regiment to the Philippines.

Had the trouble begun then, wondered Helena daily, when a triangular chain of correspondence linked the three, or was it not until Sanford had come to Helena first to talk about the absent Suzette, then to argue and tease about her own conduct, and, lastly, to discuss that never tripe of conversation to a man—blindness, which she could not tell, but which, unfortunately, had drifted along until all unwittingly a sudden shock told her the truth to a love affair in human guise, a new feeling, stronger, deeper, had taken the place of that childish affection. "Sanford, manlike, had wanted to admit the truth and face the consequences, but Helena, her heart a fiery turmoil of conflicting emotions, would not listen. She who, although only a year and a half the elder, had been all ways mother, nurse, everything to the cherished little sister—she to be the one to destroy that sister's happiness, break forever her peace of mind? "Impossible!" cried Helena, her eyes dark with anguish, and from that determination she could not be shaken despite Robert's most impassioned pleadings.

"I cannot hurt Suzette," was her unswerving answer, and at last Robert, desperate, had written Suzette, saying the thing must be met, let it be met at once. Let them be married at once and return to the Philippines. It was the only remedy which could see.

And so it was that Helena Crosby could be nothing far or lovely in the clear, warm sunlight of a realising blind love. When would Suzette come, and what would be the end? This was all her tired brain could carry.

There was a crisp footfall in the street, a sharp tinkle of the bell, then the sound of Suzette's voice in a low interchange of words, and a rustling, heavier footstep. The next moment the girl had sprung into the room. Her arm closed about Helena.

"Why, you darling, are you dead? "Why, Helena, dear," as her quick eyes noted the signs of suffering in the elder's face, Helena tried to smile.

"It is nothing, sweetheart," she answered. "Only a touch of headache, falling back on woman's never failing excuse. "Oh, Suzette, how glad I am to see you!"

Suzette laughed, hugging her close. The girl's cheeks were flushed to a vivid pink; her blue eyes, her pleasant little mouth, her curly hair, all seemed alive, a quiver with youth and joyousness. A breath from the brilliant, winsome outer world seemed to have strayed in with her, and now she was in Helena's throat. How soon—ah, how soon would Robert forget!

Suzette, tossing off hat and gloves, turned suddenly and caught Helena's older girl's hands, piled her down into the big chair, so often the shelter for them both. Her eyes were serious now.

"Tell me what it all means," she demanded practically. "Why is Robert so sick a hurry all at once? He seems to have excited himself without any fairly well," with an amused little laugh. "Why, then, this sudden eagerness?"

"His promotion—his return to the Philippines," stammered Helena. It was going to be even harder than she had feared. If to give up Robert in an instant, losing the girl who had been difficult enough, the returning of him to this radiant, splendid young creature—"He—he thinks best," she faltered. "He—"

"He thinks I will go with him to the Philippines," put in Suzette keenly.

"It? There was no intention of going, every line of the pretty face. Helena flushed.

"Was, surely, dear, as his wife," she began, but Suzette interrupted. "No! It? She declared decisively. "No! No! No! It's his choice!"

"Aboard!" echoed Helena. "But Suzette, dear, if you love him, surely you love him?" she insisted earnestly. Suzette's chin tilted resolutely.

"Do it?" she said. "Not enough for that, anyway. After all, I haven't seen Robert in ages, and we were only babies when we were so foolish. He's unchangeable. How do I know whether I love him?"

"But you do!" broke in Helena passionately. "Of course you do! You say you have loved him, dearest. And he loves you!" bravely.

"Oh! Does he?" was the dubious response. "Well, perhaps, but I—listen, Helena, her voice sharpening suddenly. "You—remember Mr. Williams? 'I've written about him.'"

"Yes," answered Helena, surprised. The little face was hidden now on her shoulder.

"Well—well," came a muffled sound, "he has a great knowledge of my life. I'm engaged to Robert—so when I told him that I was coming home he—he would not let me come alone. He is older than I, a good deal, and he has a voice. He—he cares for me very dearly though. He wants to take me abroad, to let me study—"

A sudden blind resentment surged through Helena.

"But—but Robert," she urged vehemently. "He cares for you, too; you know he does. He has not so much to offer—an unrequited loyalty to the absent soldier sweeping her along. "He—he," stammered she, she remembered.

A warm little arm crept about her neck.

"But you will help me," begged the girl. "You will tell me what to do."

"Tell him what?" uttered Helena sharply. "There was fear, almost terror, in the cry.

"Married!" cried Suzette. "That's what I am married!" said Robert distinctly. "Frederick would not take the risk of losing me. And—and he was married in Denver. He brought me here, he is coming here in an hour. You—you are not angry?"

Wistfully.

"Gladly," gasped Helena. For a moment she remained quiet still, seeking to absorb, to realize, the wonderful fact. "You—married?"

"Yes," said Suzette, smiling. "And—and you are happy?" her first thought, as ever, for Suzette.

"Yes," said Suzette, a sparkle of laughter breaking forth.

"And—and Robert?"

"Robert? I leave to you," said Suzette. "You must explain!"

When Helena, comprehending at last, sprang toward the telephone. As she watched the girl's face changed; a new and wholly sweet expression crept over her face, revealing unsuspected depths.

"And do you think that I could not understand?" she breathed, a feeling of freedom breaking in her eyes. "Do you think I could not guess the truth? Oh, sister, my dearest sister, I love Robert—to you."

Blind Men in the Witness Box.

Before the trial was half ended it was apparent that most evidence was placed in the testimony for the defendant.

"That is because he has two blind eyes testifying for him," said a man who had served on many juries. "When it comes to a question of memory the word of a blind man goes further to a courtroom than that of a person with two eyes."

"What a man cannot see he hears and his mind stores up. Our faith in the retentiveness of a blind man's memory has been frequently justified. Where a person with all his senses would become confused and testify vaguely the blind man can repeat a conversation verbatim."—New York Sun.

Early Weapons.

The earliest weapons of mankind—of the cutting, thrusting, hacking and stabbing variety—were undoubtedly suggested by the natural weapons of the animal—the tusks of the boar, elephant and walrus, the sword of the swordfish and the pointed arrow of the deer and the short lance of the steer. In fact, it is well known that these weapons, taken directly from the fruits of the chase, were actually employed by man before they made for themselves any other weapon than the club. The sword is simply the boar's tusk curved and made into steel and fattened out, just as the stick in the deer's antler made out of the same material, and so on to the end of the chapter.—New York American.

To Divert the Euphrates.

The desert of Mesopotamia is not as arid as those of Egypt. After abundant rains they are covered with green grass and feed thousands of sheep and the district is of great value to the cultivators. The inhabitants of the Tigris and Euphrates valleys have upon looking their crops and even their seed one year in three, to remedy this the waters of the Euphrates in time of overflow are to be diverted, and you will find that the structures will be almost invisible.

The following mixture is excellent for removing wrinkles from furniture: Mix equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine, dip a flannel into it and rub it well into the scratched parts. Polish with a soft duster, and you will find that the wrinkles will be almost invisible.

When steel knives are not in constant use always wrap them in tissue paper and lay them away. This quick method of keeping them from rusting and so saves the bother of cleaning them when they are required again.

The stalks may be very quickly removed from currants by well flouring the hands and rubbing the currants as hard as possible between them. This takes much less time than picking them separately and is quite as effective.

GIRL'S SUMMER COAT.

For Cool Days it is a Necessity to the Summer Excursionist.

In selecting a little girl's wardrobe for a summer to be spent at the seashore or in the mountains it is well to remember that the wardrobe should be so planned that it will be worn during the mornings or evenings especially cool. This season party of the outfit. This season party of the outfit. This season party of the outfit.

"Do it?" she said. "Not enough for that, anyway. After all, I haven't seen Robert in ages, and we were only babies when we were so foolish. He's unchangeable. How do I know whether I love him?"

REMARKABLE SERMONS.

Some Were Crucially Long, and Others Were Moments of Bravery.

Sermons are not so mighty as they used to be. In the olden times the minister was called for a "thundering" sermon, which was supposed to mark a period in the sermon somewhat toward its close.

It is said that Thomas Hooker thought his duty in performed if his sermon did not consume three hours. Once it is related that the famous diviner did deliver a really short sermon—precisely fifteen minutes. He sat down, and after a brief rest was up and at it again for two hours more. Every one of Cranmer's sermons was a small volume in itself, and many a Calvin, Baxter and Knox are all said to have been only a little more powerful to their hearers.

In striking contrast to these long-winded discourses may be mentioned some startlingly brief sermons of late years. Perhaps the shortest of all was that delivered by a clergyman at Ocean Grove, N. J., who, after announcing his text, impressively surveyed his congregation and then said: "I am sorry it is wicked." He then sat down.

It would be difficult to exceed this in brevity and effectiveness, but a north of England vicar in the last century closely approximated it. He gave out the text, "Iod so served the world," etc., to which he added this observation:

"My friends, did I speak an hour I couldn't make that message any plainer. 'I'll just leave it to you.'"

Another example of a brief but extraordinarily effective sermon was furnished by an aged and feeble clergyman in Ohio. He had been required to deliver a church address on behalf of orphan children, but his strength was unequal to the task. It was therefore an inspiration indeed that moved him to stretch upon one feeble arm in the direction of the little unfortunate sitting near the pulpit—and to exclaim with no little pathos, "When shall we have bread that these may eat?"

No impressed was the congregation that the collection was the largest ever taken in that vicinity.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Hoop Games.

The hoop race is a very good game because of the exercise derived from it. Besides being a good runner, the winner in this game must be skilful in the use of the hoop. The player should be allowed to start according to the size of their hoops, as, of course, a large hoop can be twisted faster than a small one. The one who first reaches the goal agreed upon with the race.

Turnpike.—This is considered the best of hoop games. The turnpike game is two small hoops driven into the ground quite close together or two bricks placed side by side a short distance apart.

When the players have hoops and a half have charge of the game. The players with hoops start off, trundling the hoop slowly or quickly, as they please, and the other players follow them every day. If the hoop touches either of the gates, or goes outside them the player loses the hoop, while the trundler takes his place as gatekeeper.

Wind Seng.

Blowing, blowing everywhere. Blowing from the north and south, blowing from the east and west, blowing from the north and south, blowing from the east and west, blowing from the north and south, blowing from the east and west.

Making all the trees bend low, waving grass bows to and fro, blowing from the north and south, blowing from the east and west, blowing from the north and south, blowing from the east and west.

Joint Stamp Issued.

For the first time in history a joint stamp bearing the legends of France and Britain, has been issued in the New Hebrides Islands, which are jointly administered by the two countries.

Woman's World

Rich Society Women
Berried Poor Babies.

There are fads in philanthropy, just as in everything else where the fashionable woman is concerned. Last year and the year before it was women's suffrage, but this season it seems to be babies. In New York city a coterie of the exclusive society women have banded together to help the mothers of the poor, save their babies from the summer, milk stations are to be established, and the $300,000 which these rich women have collected will be devoted to the work.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who has been identified with many of the philanthropic movements of the smart set, is at the head of this project. Over sixty depots are to be opened, where milk will be distributed to the poor and whence doctors and nurses will be sent to instruct tenement mothers how to bring up their children. The secretary of the milk committee, Mrs. Ida White Parker, said: "Women of foreign lands in New York do not understand caring for children here under totally different climatic conditions."

"Out of 125,000 babies born in New York city annually 16,000 die under one year of age. Of these more than 8,000 waste away for lack of proper food and care. During a two weeks' heated period last summer 1,005 babies died. It has been proved that this waste of life could be much reduced if mothers were taught how to feed and care for babies and if pure and properly prepared milk could be afforded at prices which they could afford to pay."

Fanny Brough's "Fortune."

Thousands of the poorer members of the theatrical profession in London have cause to bless the name of Miss Fanny Brough, who works tirelessly on behalf of the Theatrical Ladies Guild, which has for its object the providing of clothing for needy actresses and assistance in maternity cases. It would seem, however, judging by her name, that Miss Brough, which Miss Brough tells, that her work is misunderstood by some people. "The other day," says the actress, "I was enjoying one of my pastimes, riding under a horse-bus, when I heard myself being discussed by two ladies in front of me. One of them pointed to a placard bearing my name and said: 'That Fanny Brough makes a fortune out of a second-hand clothes shop!'"

Dancing.

Among the few arts dancing is the oldest and most universal.

December and May.

Marriage announcements of Alexander Mitchell, aged 169 years, to Miss Jane Hammond, sixteen years old, both of Virginia, was published Dec. 28, 1797.

Our First Yacht Club.

The first yacht club of the United States was founded in 1844. Its boat-house was erected in 1845 on the North river near Hoboken, in the same year the first regatta was held in New York city.

Abused the Bachelor.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McMillan came in from Winnipeg on Saturday and spent a couple of days at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium.

FOR SALE—Three large heaters for hall or school purposes. Any one wishing to purchase, apply to J. H. Farmer, treasurer Frank District.

Great enthusiasm was shown at the clearly reasoned oratory of the speakers at the Liberal meeting here on Wednesday evening last. Strong faith in the righteousness of their cause prevails amongst the Liberals.

J. W. Gresham left on Tuesday evening to meet Mrs. Gresham, who is returning from a three months' visit to her home in England. Mrs. Gresham is expected to arrive about the end of the week. They will probably reside in Blairmore.

The Socialists of Frank are considering the matter of nominating a local man to contest this riding in the forthcoming elections. There are several local men in the Socialist ranks who no doubt would secure a large number of votes should one of their strong men amongst the miners be nominated.

Seemed to Give Him a New Stomach
"I suffered intensely after eating and no medicine or treatment I tried seemed to do any good," writes H. M. Young, Editor of the Sun, Lake View, Ohio. "The first few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gave me surprising relief and the second bottle seemed to give me a new stomach and perfectly good health." For sale by all dealers.

Enthusiastic Liberal Meeting at Frank

The Frank Liberal association held another one of their enthusiastic meetings on Wednesday evening in their committee rooms. Interesting speeches were given by several members of the association and the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number present. Several names were added to the roll. Judging by the tone of things in political circles, Frank will go almost solid for Dr. Warkock.

It is rumored that J. D. Rockefeller's visit to the west means another transcontinental railway.

Being in the right place at the right time is often an accident.

Socialists May Put Plan In The Field

Although the Socialists have not as yet nominated a candidate to contest this riding in the forthcoming elections, it is believed that they will put a man in the field, and rumors as to who will be their banner bearer are somewhat rife. Many of the Socialists favor Clem Stubbs as their prospective representative in the federal house, while President Powell's name is also favorably mentioned. Both of those gentlemen are well known by the miners throughout this district and no doubt each would be able to poll a large number of votes.

Sports Day at Lundbreck

The Lundbreck Athletic Association held their first annual sports day on Wednesday, Aug. 16th. The weather was all that could be desired and everybody was in a jolly mood. For a real genuine sports day Lundbreck's will be hard to beat. The list of sports was large and well contested, especially the horse races. The large crowd that was in attendance conducted itself in a most exemplary way and was entertained in a splendid manner and kept on the move all the time watching the different games and races. There was not a slack minute during the whole afternoon.

In the football matches the following teams took part: Bellevue, Frank, Lundbreck Wanderers and Lundbreck Blues.

The tug-of-war was contested by four teams: Coleman, Galbraith Coal Co., McKinnon's of the B. & L. Coal Co. and an Italian team of the B. & L. Coal Co. It was a battle royal and the best team won after a struggle lasting nearly fifteen minutes.

The committees are to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which everything was conducted and we will all look forward to the second annual sports day in 1912.

The judges, Mr. Harry Ambrose, of Pincher Creek, and Mr. Moody, of Michel, gave great satisfaction and were most impartial in all their decisions.

During the day the Victorian Order of Nurses were much in evidence. It was their Tag Day and few they were who could resist the fair taggers. Everybody wore a tag and some more than one. In the evening the nurses gave a dance in the basement of the school house. All enjoyed themselves hugely, if smiling faces and eager feet are anything to judge by. The nurses are much pleased with the way everybody helped on the good work.

We are sorry that owing to lack of space we cannot publish the prize list.

congratulate Bellevue on being the winner of Coleman's great loss.

On Sunday it was whispered around a amongst some of the miners that operations would be resumed at the coal mines here the following morning. Long before it was light hundreds of men paraded the streets and pickets were stationed at several of the houses and around the mines but nobody appeared with their miners' garb on. It was a false report as the mine management here had not even considered doing such a thing as opening their mines here on that particular morning. The person who started the report played a huge joke on a large number of the miners. The miners who did not take the report seriously have been laughing ever since at the antics of those who started the bull dogs barking about two o'clock on Monday morning.
